"Join the Logseq DB alpha tester program

docsâ€§google.c/om /forms/d/e/1FAIpQLSfe5FBsIELIMDM0hUQvqwMwEH7vt2CFTcNJCCxE4ABm9_9RxQ/viewform

Last year, we started an ambitious project: create a database-driven version of Logseq. And we're getting close to releasing it, but we need a bit of your help.

While storing graphs as Org and Markdown files has worked well for almost 5 years, many of you need better tools to structure your notesâ€”and a more stable experience overall. That's why earlier this year we announced work on "Logseq DB".

In the past two months, we've tested an early version of Logseq DB with a small group of diverse testers. But as the new version is getting more stable, we want to invite more dedicated users (like you) to give us feedback on what we've built so far.

We gather feedback via our Discord server and GitHub repository. To get an invite (and give us your direct feedback), please tell us your Discord username and the email address you use for Logseq Sync (we'll test Sync and Real-Time Collaboration at a later stage, that's why we're asking).

Note: We invite new testers in batches, and it's on "first come, first serve" basis. However, signing up does not guarantee you will get an invite to the alpha test (as we might be ready for a public release before inviting everyone). Once you're added to the tester group, you will receive of notification from the Logseq server on Discord (so make sure you've joined)."

Hi team, can you tell if a Logseq DB Desktop alpha release will be available soon or in several months from now?
Ed Nico â€” 23/12/2024 20:33
Hi. See post from Ramses

â Welcome new Alpha Testers!â

However, we expect that we'll cut offline releases after the holidays when we invite the next wave of testers.
I think the devs already deem Logseq DB stable enough to start testing the local apps, but as some of them will take time off for the holidays we've decided to first perfect the importer some more before we ask people to test the apps.
Ramses â€” 24/12/2024 10:40
Ed was quicker ðŸ™, I heard @cldwalker and @tienson mention January to cut the first DB release for testing

[logseq/logseq] Issue opened: #11657 Middle-click paste of selection buffer causes Logseq to freeze for up to half an hour
Search first
[X] I searched and no similar issues were found

What Happened?
Selected the URL from the address bar in Firefox, and pressed the middle mouse button to paste it into a block in a note. Logseq became unusable for about 25 minutes this time, but it has been 15â€"30 minutes or more other times, middle-click pasting the selection buffer from Zulip and other apps as well as Firefox.

Regular paste does not have this problem.
